Making the Grade on Women's Health: A National and State-by-State Report Card assesses the overall health of women at the national and state levels. The 2001 edition is the second Report Card and includes comparisons to the 2000 edition. The Report Card is designed to promote the health and well-being of women in the United States by providing the most comprehensive assessment to date of women's health. It was prepared for policy makers, health care planners and providers, educators, researchers, elected officials, advocates and the public by the National Women's Law Center, FOCUS on Health & Leadership for Women at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine and Oregon Health & Science University, and with the assistance of SG Associates and MB Consulting. An Advisory Committee of health experts from around the nation – including researchers in varied disciplines, health care providers, government officials and public policy advocates – provided invaluable assistance.

For the indicators presented, the Report Card compares and assesses women's health in each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. It contains information on women's health issues, and the 2001 edition includes a special chapter on women and cardiovascular health. And it provides information on: women's health status nationally; federal government policies and programs important to advancing women's health and well-being; serious gaps in health research and data collection; and health disparities based on race, ethnicity, sexual orientation and disability.

Orders must be pre-paid; we cannot bill.
