

California's Child Care and Development Budget Crisis

Gov. Brown's proposal, combined with previous cuts, means devastation for child care and development programs. Child care and development programs have already suffered close to $1 billion in cuts since 2008, and more than 100,000 children have lost preschool and child care. On top of those cuts, the governor proposes to cut an additional $469 million from child care and development programs, leaving an additional 30,000 children without care. If enacted in combination with prior cuts, child care and development programs will have suffered a 40% loss since 2008.<sup>1</sup> Additional facts about Gov. Brown's May Revision budget proposal:

Gov.'s Proposal Means 40% Cut to Child Development

- 20% of the total proposed budget cuts come from child care and early education even though these programs represent only 3% of the total budget.<sup>2</sup>
- While child development will have been cut 40% since 2008, corrections will only have been cut by 15% during the same time period.<sup>3</sup>
- On top of these cuts, the governor's restructuring proposal would actually cut the California State Preschool program nearly in half, meaning an additional 51,000 children lose preschool, and for no savings.

Gov. Brown proposes to cut 30,000 children from child care and preschool programs, decimating California's early learning system. The budget proposal achieves a savings of $469 million by:

- slashing program eligibility – lowering family income levels; requiring stricter CalWORKS work requirements and denying some recipients access to child care; and
- reducing reimbursement rates to providers – for both contracted and voucher programs.
