If you really care about Immigration
Then you should care about Reproductive Justice

Sponsored by:
The National Women’s Law Center and Law Students for Reproductive Justice
Presenters

Kimberly Inez McGuire
Associate Director of Government Relations & Public Affairs
National Latina Institute for Reproductive Justice
kimberly@latinainstitute.org

Shivana Jorwar
Reproductive Justice Program Director
National Asian Pacific American Women’s Forum
sjorawar@napawf.org

Kelli Garcia
National Women’s Law Center
kgarcia@nwlc.org
About this series

- Developed to address intersection between Reproductive Justice and other progressive issues.

- Introduces Reproductive Justice to new communities that may only know of reproductive rights advocacy that focuses on abortion and contraception.

- Educates on RJ’s three components in a context with which other progressives are familiar.
Upcoming Webinars…

- Interpersonal and Domestic Violence
  - October 23\(^{rd}\)

- LGBT Rights
  - November 13\(^{th}\)

Please let us know if there are other issues you’d like to see explored through an RJ lens!
The Reproductive Justice Movement was Created as a Response to Movements that Failed to Meet the Needs of Communities of Color
What are the components of Reproductive Justice?

The right of individuals to:
- have the children they want
- raise the children they have, and
- plan their families through safe, legal access to abortion and contraception.

How does Reproductive Justice relate to social justice movements generally?

- Reproductive Justice requires that all people have the resources, as well as the economic, social, and political power to make healthy decisions about their bodies, sexuality, and reproduction.

- The government plays a key role in remedying social inequalities that contribute to reproductive oppression.
Intersection of Immigration and Reproductive Justice

- Discriminatory immigration policies make it more difficult for women to have healthy pregnancies and raise the children they have.

- The people who engage in anti-immigrant rhetoric also support restrictions on women’s reproductive health.
Questions?

Please raise your virtual hand for us to call on you or enter your question in the chat box.