State Child Care Assistance Policies: New Mexico

- Income eligibility limit: In 2019, a family of three in New Mexico could qualify for child care assistance with an annual income up to $41,560 (195 percent of poverty, 80 percent of state median income).

- Waiting list: New Mexico had no waiting list for child care assistance as of February 2019.

- Parent copayments: In 2019, a family of three with an income at 100 percent of poverty ($21,330 a year) receiving child care assistance in New Mexico paid $81 per month, or 5 percent of its income, in copayments. A family of three with an income at 150 percent of poverty ($31,995 a year) receiving child care assistance paid $186 per month, or 7 percent of its income, in copayments.

- Payment rates: In 2019, New Mexico’s payment rates for child care providers serving families receiving child care assistance were below the federally recommended level—the 75th percentile of current market rates, which is the level designed to give families access to 75 percent of the providers in their community.
  - New Mexico’s monthly payment rate for center care for a four-year-old was $491, which was $262 (35 percent) below the 75th percentile of current market rates for this type of care.
  - New Mexico’s monthly payment rate for center care for a one-year-old was $721, which was $53 (7 percent) below the 75th percentile of current market rates for this type of care.

- Tiered payment rates: In 2019, New Mexico had higher payment rates for higher-quality care.
  - The payment rate for center care for a four-year-old at the highest quality tier was 71 percent higher than the rate at the lowest quality tier.
  - The payment rate for center care for a four-year-old at the highest quality tier was still below the 75th percentile of current market rates.

- Eligibility for parents searching for a job: In 2019, New Mexico allowed parents already receiving child care assistance to continue receiving it for up to 3 months while searching for a job. However, the state did not allow parents to initially qualify for and begin receiving child care assistance while searching for a job.
As of April 2019, the income limit was increased to $42,660 (200 percent of poverty) to adjust for the 2019 federal poverty level.

Grandparents or legal guardians who have taken custody/guardianship of a child and families receiving protective services and at-risk child care are exempt from copayments.

The state's market rate survey differentiates between quality levels and the 75th percentile of market rates was obtained for providers at each quality level of the state's quality rating and improvement system. The base (lowest) rate, which is the most common rate level, is compared here to the 75th percentile for providers at that same quality level.

The base (lowest) rate, which is the most common rate level, is compared here to the 75th percentile of market rates for providers at that same quality level.

The payment rate for the highest quality level is compared here to the 75th percentile of market rates for providers at that same quality level.

Parents can continue receiving child care assistance following a temporary change of activity, including the cessation of work or attendance at a training or education program, for up to 90 days. Parents can also continue receiving assistance when they experience a non-temporary change of activity, including the loss of employment, during a 3-month grace period. A parent can continue receiving child care assistance for 90 days following a job loss plus an additional 3 months to look for work during the grace period, for a total of 6 months.

Parents can only qualify for child care assistance while searching for a job if they are receiving Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) and approved for job search.