

No. 24-30399

In the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit

STATE OF LOUISIANA, BY AND THROUGH ITS ATTORNEY GENERAL, ELIZABETH B. MURRILL; LOUISIANA DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION; STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, BY AND THROUGH ITS ATTORNEY
GENERAL, LYNN FITCH; STATE OF MONTANA, BY AND THROUGH ITS ATTORNEY GENERAL, AUSTIN
KNUDSEN; STATE OF IDAHO, BY AND THROUGH ITS ATTORNEY GENERAL, RAUL LABRADOR; SCHOOL
BOARD OF WEBSTER PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF RED RIVER PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF BOSSIER PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD SABINE PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF GRANT PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF
WEST CARROLL PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF CADDO PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF NATCHITOCHE
PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF CALDWELL PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF ALLEN PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD
LASALLE PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD JEFFERSON DAVIS PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF OUACHITA
PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF FRANKLIN PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF ACADIA PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF DESOTO PARISH; SCHOOL BOARD OF ST. TAMMANY PARISH; ALL PLAINTIFFS,

Plaintiffs-Appellees,

v.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION; MIGUEL CARDONA; OFFICE FOR CIVIL RIGHTS,
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION; CATHERINE LHAMON; UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT
OF JUSTICE; MERRICK B. GARLAND; KRISTEN CLARKE,

Defendants-Appellants.

SCHOOL BOARD RAPIDES PARISH,

Plaintiff-Appellee,

v.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION; MIGUEL CARDONA; OFFICE FOR CIVIL RIGHTS,
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION; CATHERINE LHAMON; UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT
OF JUSTICE; MERRICK B. GARLAND; KRISTEN CLARKE,

Defendants-Appellants.

On Appeal from the United States District Court for the Western District of Louisiana, Monroe Division
Case No. 3:24-cv-00563

BRIEF OF AMICI CURIAE NATIONAL WOMEN'S LAW CENTER AND 20 GENDER JUSTICE ORGANIZATIONS IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS

(Attorneys Listed On Following Page)

Anya Marino
Shiwali Patel
Emily Martin
Elizabeth E. Theran
NATIONAL WOMEN'S LAW CENTER
1350 I Street NW, Suite 700
Washington, DC 20005

Kaitlyn Golden
Madeline Gitomer
Victoria S. Nugent
DEMOCRACY FORWARD FOUNDATION
P.O. Box 34553
Washington, DC 20043
(202) 448-9090

Counsel for Amici Curiae

CERTIFICATE OF INTERESTED PERSONS AND CORPORATE DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

The undersigned counsel of record certifies that, in addition to the named parties, their counsel, and prior amici, the following listed persons and entities as described in the fourth sentence of Fifth Circuit Rule 28.2.1 have an interest in the outcome of this case. These representations are made in order that the judges of this Court may evaluate possible disqualification or recusal.

Amici Curiae

National Women’s Law Center
Bend the Arc: A Jewish Partnership for Justice
Equality California
FORGE, Inc.
GLSEN
If/When/How: Lawyering for Reproductive Justice
National Association of Social Workers
National Network to End Domestic Violence
People For the American Way
Planned Parenthood Federation of America
Public Counsel
Reproaction
SIECUS: Sex Ed for Social Change
SisterReach
SisterReach Illinois
The Trevor Project
The Womxn Project
Tom Homann LGBTQ+ Law Association
Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Action Alliance
Women’s Bar Association of the District of Columbia
Women’s Law Project

Counsel for amici curiae

DEMOCRACY FORWARD FOUNDATION
Kaitlyn Golden

Madeline Gitomer
Victoria S. Nugent

NATIONAL WOMEN'S LAW CENTER

Anya Marino
Shiwali Patel
Emily Martin
Elizabeth E. Theran

SO CERTIFIED this 4th day of September 2024.

/s/ Kaitlyn Golden
Kaitlyn Golden
Democracy Forward Foundation
P.O. Box 34553
Washington, DC 20043
(202) 448-9090

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES	v
INTEREST OF AMICI CURIAE	1
INTRODUCTION	2
BACKGROUND	6
ARGUMENT	8
I. The District Court’s Decision Deviates from the Text, Purpose, and Legislative History of Title IX and Established Precedent.	8
A. The decision does not comport with the text or purpose of Title IX.	8
B. The district court deviated from established precedent in Title IX and analogous case law.	12
II. Policies That Allow Transgender Students to Use Facilities that Align with Their Gender Identity Do Not Harm Cisgender Girls or Women, But Do Protect Transgender Girls and Women From Harm.	20
A. Research confirms that transgender-inclusive locker and restroom policies do not harm other students.	20
B. Excluding transgender students from school facilities that align with their gender identity harms them.	24
CONCLUSION	29

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE..... 31

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE 32

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases	Page(s)
A.C. v. Metropolitan Sch. Dist. of Martinsville , 75 F.4th 760 (7th Cir. 2023)	13, 14
Bostock v. Clayton Cnty. , 590 U.S. 644 (2020).....	3, 10, 17, 18, 19
Carcano v. McCrory , 203 F. Supp. 3d 615 (M.D.N.C. 2016)	25
Doe v. Boyertown Area Sch. Dist. , 897 F.3d 518 (3d Cir. 2018).....	5, 15, 16
Doe v. William Marsh Rice Univ. , 67 F.4th 702 (5th Cir. 2023).....	10
Gloucester Cnty. Sch. Bd. v. G.G. , 580 U.S. 1168 (2017)	12
Jackson v. Birmingham Bd. of Educ. , 544 U.S. 167 (2005).....	9
Lakoski v. James , 66 F.3d 751 (5th Cir. 1995)	18
North Haven Bd. of Educ. v. Bell , 456 U.S. 512 (1982).....	9
Olmstead v. L.C. ex rel. Zimring , 527 U.S. 581 (1999).....	18
Oncale v. Sundowner Offshore Servs. , 523 U.S. 75 (1998).....	9, 10
Parents for Priv. v. Barr , 949 F.3d 1210 (9th Cir. 2020).....	5, 16
Whitaker v. Kenosha Unified Sch. Dist. No.1 Bd. Of Educ. , 858 F.3d 1034 (7th Cir. 2017)	13, 15
 Statutes
20 U.S.C. § 1681.....	2, 5, 9, 19
42 U.S.C. § 2000e–2.....	19
 Rules & Regulations
34 C.F.R. § 106.44(f)(1)	22
Nondiscrimination on the Basis of Sex in Education Programs or Activities Receiving Federal Financial Assistance , 89 Fed. Reg. 33474 (Apr. 29, 2024).....	3, 6, 7, 23, 24

Other Authorities

118 Cong. Rec. 5111 (1972) 11

Am. Med. Ass’n & GLMA, Transgender individuals’ access to public facilities (2018), <https://www.ama-assn.org/system/files/2019-03/transgender-public-facilities-issue-brief.pdf>..... 22

Amber Jayanth, Transgender Butler County man says group beat him up over restroom use, Fox19 (July 8, 2022), <https://www.fox19.com/2022/07/08/transgender-butler-county-man-says-group-beat-him-up-using-wrong-restroom>..... 26

Amira Hasenbush et al., Gender Identity Nondiscrimination Laws in Public Accommodations: a Review of Evidence Regarding Safety and Privacy in Public Restrooms, Locker Rooms, and Changing Rooms, 16 Sexuality Rsch. and Soc. Pol’y 70 (July 23, 2018), https://escholarship.org/content/qt4rs4n6h0/qt4rs4n6h0_noSplash_8740e92d7f24b6c89dbd4bd4d27fbbcb.pdf..... 21

Christopher Wiggins, Cis Woman Mistaken as Transgender Records Being Berated in Bathroom, The Advocate (updated May 26, 2023), <https://www.advocate.com/news/2022/11/01/cis-woman-mistaken-transgender-records-being-berated-bathroom> 29

Compl., State of Louisiana et al. v. U.S. Dep’t of Educ. et al., No. 3:24-cv-00563 (W.D. La. Apr. 29, 2023) 7

Gabriel R. Murchison et al., School Restroom / Locker Room Restrictions and Sexual Assault Risk Among Transgender Youth, Pediatrics (2019), <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC8849575/>. 26, 27

Jody L. Herman et al., The Williams Inst., UCLA Sch. of L., Suicide Thoughts and Attempts Among Transgender Adults: Findings from the 2015 U.S. Transgender Survey (Sept. 2019), <https://williamsinstitute.law.ucla.edu/wpcontent/uploads/Suicidality-Transgender-Sep-2019.pdf>..... 28

Jody L. Herman, Gendered Restrooms and Minority Stress: The Public Regulation of Gender and Its Impact on Transgender People’s Lives, 19

J. Pub. Mgmt. & Soc. Pol’y 65 (2013) 25

Joseph G. Kosciw et al., GLSEN, The 2019 National School Climate Survey: The Experiences of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer Youth in Our Nation’s Schools (2020), https://www.glsen.org/sites/default/files/2020-10/NSCS-2019-Full-Report_0.pdf 25, 27, 28

Julie Moreau, No link between trans-inclusive policies and bathroom safety, study finds, NBC News (Sept. 19, 2018), <https://www.nbcnews.com/feature/nbc-out/no-link-between-trans-inclusive-policies-bathroom-safety-study-finds-n911106>..... 21

Kiara Alfonseca, Transgender student alleges assault after using bathroom, family calls for charges, ABC News (June 7, 2024), <https://abcnews.go.com/US/transgender-student-assaulted-after-bathroom-family-calls-charges/story?id=110927216>..... 26

Lou Chibbaro Jr., Predictions of trans bathroom harassment unfounded, Washington Blade (March 31, 2016), <https://www.washingtonblade.com/2016/03/31/predictions-of-trans-bathroom-harassment-unfounded/>..... 21

Matt DeRienzo, Woman mistaken for transgender harassed in Walmart bathroom, News Times (May 16, 2016);
<https://www.newstimes.com/local/article/Woman-mistaken-for-transgender-harassed-in-7471666.php> 29

Melanie Springer Mock, I’m a Woman Who Got Kicked Out of Women’s Bathrooms, Christianity Today Int’l (June 7, 2016), <https://www.christianitytoday.com/women/2016/june-web-only/im-woman-who-got-kicked-out-of-womens-bathrooms.html> 29

Movement Advancement Project & GLSEN, Separation and Stigma: Transgender Youth & School Facilities 4-5 (2017), https://www.glsen.org/sites/default/files/2019-11/Separation_and_Stigma_2017.pdf 5

Nat’l Task Force to End Sexual and Domestic Violence Against Women, National Consensus Statement of Anti-Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Organizations in Support of Full and Equal Access for the

Transgender Community (updated Apr. 29, 2016), <https://endsexualviolence.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/09/STATEMENT-OF-ANTI-SEXUAL-ASSAULT-AND-DOMESTIC-VIOLENCE-ORGANIZATIONS-IN-SUPPORT-OF-EQUAL-ACCESS-FOR-THE-TRANSGENDER-COMMUNITY.pdf>..... 23

Ryan Thoreson, Shut Out: Restrictions on Bathroom and Locker Room Access for Transgender Youth in US Schools, Hum. Rts. Watch (Sept. 14, 2016), www.hrw.org/report/2016/09/15/shut-out/restrictions-bathroom-and-locker-room-access-transgender-youth-us..... 22, 25

Sandy E. James et al., Nat’l Ctr. for Transgender Equal., The Report of the 2015 U.S. Transgender Survey, <https://transequality.org/sites/default/files/docs/usts/USTS-Full-Report-Dec17.pdf>..... 25

Susan Etta Keller, Gender-Inclusive Bathrooms: How Pandemic-Inspired Design Imperatives and the Reasoning of Recent Federal Court Decisions Make Rejecting Sex-Separated Facilities More Possible, 23 Geo. J. Gender & L. 35 (2021), <https://www.law.georgetown.edu/gender-journal/wp-content/uploads/sites/20/2022/03/Gender-Inclusive-Bathrooms.pdf>..... 12

INTEREST OF *AMICI CURIAE*¹

This brief is filed by Amici National Women’s Law Center and 20 additional organizations committed to gender justice, including both the rights of survivors and LGBTQI+ people.

National Women’s Law Center (NWLC) is a nonprofit legal organization dedicated to advancing and protecting women’s legal rights and the right of all to be free from sex discrimination. Since 1972, NWLC has worked to secure equal opportunity in education for women and girls through enforcement of Title IX, the Constitution, and other laws. NWLC has led briefs in numerous cases affirming that protections against sex discrimination include protections for LGBTQI+ students. NWLC is also committed to ensuring all women and girls, including transgender women and girls, are protected from sexual violence. Additional amici are:

- Bend the Arc: A Jewish Partnership for Justice
- Equality California
- FORGE, Inc.
- GLSEN
- If/When/How: Lawyering for Reproductive Justice
- National Association of Social Workers
- National Network to End Domestic Violence
- People For the American Way
- Planned Parenthood Federation of America

¹ No party’s counsel authored this brief in whole or in part; no party or party’s counsel contributed money intended to fund this brief, and no person other than amici curiae, their members, and their counsel contributed money to fund this brief. All parties have consented to the filing of this brief.

- Public Counsel
- Reproaction
- SIECUS: Sex Ed for Social Change
- SisterReach
- SisterReach Illinois
- The Trevor Project
- The Womxn Project
- Tom Homann LGBTQ+ Law Association
- Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Action Alliance
- Women’s Bar Association of the District of Columbia
- Women’s Law Project

Amici have a shared interest in ensuring that protections against sex discrimination are properly interpreted to include protections against discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity.

INTRODUCTION

Title IX is clear: “No person” should be subject to sex discrimination in an education program or activity. 20 U.S.C. § 1681. For over fifty years, Title IX has required educational environments to be free of sex discrimination, including from harassment and limitations tied to sex-based stereotypes. This case threatens to undermine these critical federal protections against sex discrimination.

The Department of Education (the “Department”) promulgated the final rule at issue to “fulfill Title IX’s protection for students, teachers, and other employees in federally funded elementary schools and secondary schools and postsecondary institutions against all forms of sex discrimination, including sex-based harassment and sexual violence.” Nondiscrimination on the Basis of Sex in Education Programs or Activities Receiving Federal Financial Assistance, 89 Fed. Reg. 33474, 33476 (Apr. 29, 2024) (the “Rule”). Specifically, the Rule clarifies the scope of prohibited discrimination under Title IX, recognizing that discrimination because of sex necessarily includes discrimination because of sexual orientation and gender identity. Among other things, the Rule clarifies that schools cannot discriminate on the basis of sex by treating students in a manner inconsistent with their gender identity. Thus, schools must permit transgender students to use school facilities, such as locker rooms and restrooms, consistent with their gender identity. 89 Fed. Reg. at 33820.

The Rule is consistent with the statutory text of Title IX and aligns with the statute’s history and core purpose. It also comports with numerous federal court decisions regarding the scope of sex discrimination under Title IX—decided both before and after the Supreme Court’s ruling in Bostock v. Clayton County, 590 U.S. 644 (2020). Bostock held that sex discrimination includes sexual orientation and gender identity discrimination under an analogous federal workplace civil rights law, Title VII, because an individual’s sexual orientation and gender identity are “inextricably bound up with sex.” In promulgating the Rule, the Department thoroughly considered this precedent, the text and history of the statute, concerns from commenters, and a lengthy record.

Nevertheless, Plaintiffs-Appellees (Appellees) challenged the Rule, alleging incorrectly that Title IX’s mandate to prevent sex discrimination does not encompass discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity. Appellees also argued erroneously that the Rule infringes on the privacy and safety interests of cisgender students. The district court wrongly agreed and granted Appellees preliminary injunctive relief.

The district court’s decision—like other recent decisions addressing the Rule—is wrong, both on the law and the facts, and deviates from established precedent. Before the Rule’s promulgation, courts had overwhelmingly concluded both that discrimination against transgender individuals is sex discrimination and that policies permitting transgender students to use facilities that align with their gender identity do not harm other students. Multiple circuit courts have found that a school’s refusal to adopt transgender-inclusive policies violates Title IX. Far from breaking new ground, the Rule codified existing conclusions by the federal judiciary. The decision below failed to give due weight to existing precedent.

The district court’s decision similarly failed to consider and credit evidence-based research, instead favoring generalized allegations of harm tied to baseless fears and discriminatory stereotypes about transgender students. No credible evidence supports allegations that transgender students' use of restrooms or locker rooms consistent with their affirmed gender injures any student. To the contrary, research shows that denying transgender students access to restrooms aligned with their gender increases their risk of experiencing a range of harms, including sexual violence. And hundreds of school districts have adopted non-discrimination policies that allow transgender students to use restrooms aligned with their gender identity while maintaining the privacy and safety of all students.²

The lower court has wrongfully forestalled Title's IX broad promise to protect all persons from sex discrimination. See 20 U.S.C. § 1681(a). Amici urge this Court to reverse the decision below and allow the Rule to take effect.

² Movement Advancement Project & GLSEN, Separation and Stigma: Transgender Youth & School Facilities 4-5 (2017), https://www.glsen.org/sites/default/files/2019-11/Separation_and_Stigma_2017.pdf. Indeed, federal courts of appeal have held that such policies are not in conflict with ensuring the privacy and safety of all students. See, e.g., Parents for Privacy v. Barr, 949 F.3d 1210 (9th Cir. 2020); see also Doe v. Boyertown Area Sch. Dist., 897 F.3d 518 (3d Cir. 2018).

BACKGROUND

In developing the Rule, the Department carefully evaluated a range of views related to “Participation Consistent With Gender Identity,” 89 Fed. Reg. at 33817-18. These included allegations that nondiscrimination policies could impact some students’ privacy or safety interests. See id. at 33818. The Department addressed the comments in depth, including discussion of relevant research and case law. Id. at 33818-21. The Department considered Appellees’ concerns, explaining in detail why protections against sexual orientation- and gender identity-related discrimination fit with Title IX’s text and purpose, see, e.g., id. at 33804-06, 33809-10. The Department also correctly concluded that “the mere presence of a transgender person in a single-sex space” does not compromise “anyone’s legitimate privacy interest” and that the presence of transgender students does not pose a safety risk to cisgender students. Id. at 33820.

Additionally, despite a lack of evidence that enabling transgender students to access facilities consistent with their gender identity would compromise cisgender students’ safety or privacy, the Department nonetheless identified potential nondiscriminatory measures to address safety and privacy concerns. Id. First, the Department highlighted that sex harassment, including sexual violence, is already illegal and schools should take steps to prevent and address harassment for all students. Second, the Department noted that recipients of federal funds could offer “single-occupancy facilities, among other accommodations, to any students who seek additional privacy for any reason.” Id

The Department also considered experts’ views, including from medical organizations, and reviewed prior legal decisions that similarly concluded that transgender students are the ones who could face serious harms if schools exclude them from facilities that align with their gender identity. Id. at 33819. Finally, the Department considered comments submitted by experts regarding sexual violence prevention that urged the Department to confirm that transgender students should not be excluded from school facilities based on their gender identity. Id. at 33808-09.

After the Rule was finalized, a group of states and several school districts in Louisiana filed this lawsuit, seeking preliminary injunctive relief. See generally Compl., State of Louisiana et al. v. U.S. Dep’t of Educ. et al., No. 3:24-cv-00563 (W.D. La. Apr. 29, 2023). Among other things, Appellees argued that the Rule exceeded the Department’s authority by including gender-identity discrimination within sex discrimination and that the Department failed to offer a reasoned explanation or respond to comments addressing the inclusion of gender identity. Id.

The district court granted Appellees’ preliminary injunction request, erroneously finding the Department exceeded its authority in defining sex discrimination to include discrimination based on gender identity. The decision rested on the incorrect premise that Title IX was only intended to apply to discrimination against “biological women” by “biological men.” ROA.2351, 2366-68. The court likewise concluded that Plaintiffs were likely to prevail on the merits of their claim that the Rule was arbitrary and capricious, suggesting that the Rule should have required “documentation” requirements to address the “sincerity,” ROA.2382, of any student who wishes to use school facilities that align with their affirmed gender. ROA.2379. The court also concluded that the Rule was arbitrary and capricious because it would “place[] biological females” at risk. ROA.2382.

ARGUMENT

I. The District Court’s Decision Deviates from the Text, Purpose, and Legislative History of Title IX and Established Precedent.

A. The decision does not comport with the text or purpose of Title IX.

The district court’s opinion is largely premised on the idea that Title IX is a narrow statute enacted solely to “prevent biological women from being discriminated against in education in favor of biological men.” ROA.2351. But such a reading of Title IX is unmoored from its text and intent. In fact, the statute provides that “[n]o person” should be subject to sex discrimination in an education program or activity. 20 U.S.C. § 1681. It is not limited to women and girls, let alone cisgender women and girls. This expansive language has the broad purpose of eradicating all forms of invidious sex discrimination in educational programs.

The Supreme Court has repeatedly recognized the expansive nature of Title IX’s text. More than forty years ago, in North Haven Board of Education v. Bell, the Court recognized that, to “give [Title IX] the scope that its origins dictate, we must accord it a sweep as broad as its language.” 456 U.S. 512, 521 (1982) (quotation omitted); see also Jackson v. Birmingham Bd. of Educ., 544 U.S. 167, 175 (2005) (“Congress gave the statute a broad reach.”).

The Supreme Court has acknowledged that sweeping language in “statutory prohibitions often go[es] beyond the principal evil [that prompted their enactment] to cover reasonably comparable evils, and it is ultimately the provisions of our laws rather than the principal concerns of our legislators by which we are governed.” Oncale v. Sundowner Offshore Servs., 523 U.S. 75, 79 (1998). As Justice Scalia wrote for a unanimous Court, even though “[m]ale-on-male sexual harassment in the workplace was assuredly not the principal evil Congress was concerned with when it enacted Title VII,” Title VII’s broad language extended to that “reasonably comparable evil[].” Id.; see also Bostock, 590 U.S. at 717. Indeed, male students can and do bring claims under Title IX, including in this Circuit. See, e.g., Doe v. William Marsh Rice Univ., 67 F.4th 702, 708 (5th Cir. 2023) (discussing Title IX claim brought by male student and reversing adverse summary judgment decision). Thus, the “broad reach” of Title IX’s proclamation that “[n]o person” be subject to sex discrimination encompasses discrimination against transgender students.

The district court does not point to anything within the text or legislative history of Title IX to suggest the term sex was meant to refer only to “biological sex”—because it could not. Nothing in the text or legislative history supports this reading. For example, the court pointed to definitions that it claimed suggested sex means “biological men and/or women,” ROA.2366-67, but these definitions made no reference to any sort of “biology.” The district court also relied on Title IX regulations related to sports. ROA.2367-68. But the Rule makes clear that it is not interpreting Title IX’s sports-related provisions. See Br. for Appellants 27 n.5, ECF No. 81.

The legislative history instead confirms that Congress intended for the law to offer sweeping protections. In introducing Title IX, Senator Birch Bayh, its principal sponsor, articulated that the “impact of this amendment” was meant to be “far-reaching,” 118 Cong. Rec. 5111, 5808 (1972), as it was “designed to root out, as thoroughly as possible at the present time, the social evil of sex discrimination in education.” Id. at 5804. Congress was specifically concerned with eradicating pernicious sex stereotyping—Senator Bayh expressly recognized that sex discrimination in education is based on “stereotyped notions,” like that of “women as pretty things who go to college to find a husband, . . . marry, have children, and never work again.” Id. Title IX was therefore necessary to “change [these] operating assumptions” and to combat the “vicious and reinforcing pattern of discrimination” based on these myths. Id.

The district court misconstrued this history to reach its flawed conclusions. The decision ignores the focus on eradicating discrimination based on sex stereotypes and instead suggests that the original legislative intent relied on a very narrow understanding of sex and only intended to protect cisgender female students. ROA.3368. Here, discrimination against transgender students mirrors the very sex stereotyping Congress enacted Title IX to remedy. Relying on broad generalizations about transgender students’ bodies to exclude them from school facilities punishes them for their non-conformity with stereotypes associated with their sex assigned at birth—and only perpetuates the rampant discrimination they already face. Prohibiting discrimination against transgender students thus fits well within the statute’s sweeping language.

B. The district court deviated from established precedent in Title IX and analogous case law.

Federal courts have routinely rejected Title IX claims alleging that “the mere presence of transgender students [i]s invasive and harmful.”³ Courts of appeal have repeatedly concluded that transgender-inclusive policies in schools do not violate Title IX, nor do they create harms for other students. Further, courts have found that it violates Title IX to prevent a student from using a restroom consistent with their gender identity.

For example, the Seventh Circuit has twice rejected policies barring ³ Susan Etta Keller, Gender-Inclusive Bathrooms: How Pandemic-Inspired Design Imperatives and the Reasoning of Recent Federal Court Decisions Make Rejecting Sex-Separated Facilities More Possible, 23 Geo. J. Gender & L. 35, 50 (2021), <https://www.law.georgetown.edu/gender-journal/wp-content/uploads/sites/20/2022/03/Gender-Inclusive-Bathrooms.pdf>. These claims echo the unfounded fears historically used to justify discrimination against other groups; courts have rejected similar arguments in the context of racial segregation. See, e.g., Br. of NAACP Legal Defense & Educational Fund, Inc. and Asian American Legal Defense & Education Fund as Amici Curiae in Supp. of Resp’t at 4, Gloucester Cnty. Sch. Bd. v. G.G., 580 U.S. 1168 (2017).

transgender students from using bathrooms aligning with their gender identity on grounds the policies violated Title IX. A.C. v. Metropolitan Sch. Dist. of Martinsville, 75 F.4th 760 (7th Cir. 2023), cert. denied, 144 S. Ct. 683 (2024); Whitaker v. Kenosha Unified Sch. Dist. No.1 Bd. Of Educ., 858 F.3d 1034, 1052 (7th Cir. 2017). In Whitaker, the Seventh Circuit concluded—pre-Bostock—that “a policy that requires an individual to use a bathroom that does not conform with his or her gender identity punishes that individual for his or her gender non-conformance, which in turn violates Title IX.” Whitaker, 858 F.3d at 1049. The court recognized that “a transgender individual does not conform to the sex-based stereotypes of the sex that he or she was assigned at birth,” and therefore the plaintiff was likely to prevail on a sex-stereotyping claim under Title IX. Id at 1048. The decision further explained that a transgender-exclusive policy “does nothing to protect the privacy rights of each individual student vis-à-vis students who share similar anatomy,” and noted the transgender plaintiff had “used the boys’ bathroom . . . without incident or complaint from another student.” Id. at 1052.

Six years later, in A.C., the Seventh Circuit had the opportunity to reconsider Whitaker following Bostock. There, the court affirmed a preliminary injunction under Title IX in favor of three transgender boys who were prohibited from using the boys' restrooms at their schools. A.C., 75 F.4th at 764. The court reaffirmed its holding in Whitaker, namely that “discrimination against transgender students is a form of sex discrimination.” Id. at 769. Thus, the court rejected the defendants' argument that sex under Title IX meant “biological sex,” finding that the 1972 dictionary definitions of sex, Title IX's text, and the statute's regulations did not establish such a definition. Id.

The court also found it “telling” that Bostock held “that discrimination based on transgender status is a form of sex discrimination,” and thus provided “useful guidance.” Id. at 768. Accordingly, the court rejected arguments that Bostock's language refraining from addressing “sex-segregated bathrooms, locker rooms, and dress codes” demanded a different result. The court recognized that this language said, “in essence, ‘we aren't reaching this point,’” a practice in which courts engage regularly. Id. Applying Bostock's reasoning, the court asked “whether our three plaintiffs are suffering negative consequences (for Title IX, lack of equal access to school programs) for behavior that is being tolerated in male students who are not transgender.” The answer was yes. Id. at 772-73.

In Grimm v. Gloucester County School Board, 972 F.3d 586 (4th Cir.

2020), the Fourth Circuit likewise found a Title IX violation when a school denied a transgender boy the use of the boys' restroom. Id. at 613-14. The court observed that the plaintiff was treated worse than similarly situated students.⁴ “Unlike the other boys, he had to use either the girls['] restroom or a single-stall option.” Id. at 618. The court also recognized that the policy had no relation to protecting students' privacy interests. Id. at 613-14. Although the Fourth Circuit acknowledged that students maintain privacy interests, it stressed that the “bodily privacy of cisgender boys using the boys['] restrooms did not increase” when Gavin Grimm, a transgender boy, was prohibited from entering. Id. at 614. According to the court, the policy ignored how transgender students use restrooms aligning with their gender identity: “by entering a stall and closing the door.” Id. at 613 (quoting Whitaker, 858 F.3d at 1052).

In Doe v. Boyertown Area School District, 897 F.3d 518 (3d Cir. 2018), reh'g en banc denied, 897 F.3d 515 (3d Cir. 2018), the Third Circuit found that a policy allowing all students to use bathrooms and locker rooms that align with their gender identity did not discriminate based on sex, and ⁴ The Fourth Circuit correctly rejected the school board's argument that the discriminatory treatment of Grimm should be compared to “biological girls,” recognizing that doing so “would only vindicate the Board's own misconceptions, which themselves reflect stereotypic notions.” Grimm, 972 F.3d at 610 (internal quotations omitted).

“therefore does not offend Title IX.” Id. at 535. The court was “unpersuaded . . . that the appellants’ asserted privacy interest requires protection from the risk of encountering students in a bathroom or locker room whom appellants identify as being members of the opposite sex.” Id. at 531. Rejecting arguments that an inclusive policy violated cisgender students’ rights, the court determined that “the presence of transgender students in the locker and restrooms is no more offensive to constitutional or [state] law privacy interests than the presence of the other students who are not transgender. Nor does their presence infringe on the plaintiffs’ rights under Title IX.” Id. at 521. Moreover, the court stated, “barring transgender students from restrooms that align with their gender identity would itself pose a potential Title IX violation.” Id. at 533.

Finally, the Ninth Circuit found that a policy allowing transgender students to use restrooms and locker rooms consistent with their gender identity did not violate Title IX, nor did it violate cisgender students’ Fourteenth Amendment privacy rights. Parents for Priv. v. Barr, 949 F.3d 1210, 1229 (9th Cir. 2020). The court recognized that Title IX’s authorization of sex-segregated facilities did not mean they “must be segregated based only on biological sex and cannot accommodate gender identity.” Id. at 1227. The policy treated “both male and female students the same,” which the court concluded “suggest[ed] an absence of gender/sex animus.” Id. at 1228. And the court held that “the use of facilities for their intended purpose, without more, does not constitute an act of harassment simply because a person is transgender.” Id. at 1229. “A policy that allows transgender students to use school bathroom and locker facilities that match their self-identified gender in the same manner that cisgender students utilize those facilities does not infringe Fourteenth Amendment privacy [rights].” Id. at 1240.

Here, the district court’s decision deviated from this clear line of precedent. Indeed, until the recent spate of rulings addressing the Rule, all but one appellate court had concluded that transgender students should be permitted to use school facilities that align with their gender identity. There have been no intervening changes in law that justify a different result.

The district court’s decision is also inconsistent with the Supreme Court’s applicable reasoning in Bostock. Bostock held that workplace discrimination against transgender employees was discrimination “because of sex” under Title VII. 590 U.S. at 655-58. The decision recognized that “it is impossible to discriminate against a person for being homosexual or transgender without discriminating against that individual based on sex.” Id. at 660. When an employer fires an employee who is a transgender woman but tolerates the same conduct by an employee who is a cisgender woman, “the individual employee’s sex plays an unmistakable and impermissible role in the discharge decision.” Id.; see also id. at 669 (“[A]s we’ve seen, discrimination based on homosexuality or transgender status necessarily entails discrimination based on sex; the first cannot happen without the second.”).

The Supreme Court’s reasoning in Bostock should extend to Title IX. This Court has recognized that “[a]lthough phrased differently, both Title VII and Title IX protect individuals from employment discrimination on the basis of sex. Any difference between their prohibitions of sex discrimination is not compelled by statutory language.” Lakoski v. James, 66 F.3d 751, 756 (5th Cir. 1995); see also Olmstead v. L.C. ex rel. Zimring, 527 U.S. 581, 616 n. 1 (1999) (Thomas, J., dissenting) (“This Court has also looked to its Title VII interpretations of discrimination in illuminating Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 86 Stat. 373, as amended, 20 U.S.C. § 1681 et seq., which prohibits discrimination under any federally funded education program or activity.”).

Title VII and Bostock serve as appropriate analogues for interpreting Title IX because of the similarities in the respective statutes’ language and purpose. Both Title VII and Title IX include prohibitions on discrimination because of a person's sex. See 20 U.S.C. § 1681(a) (“No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity”); 42 U.S.C. § 2000e–2 (“It shall be an unlawful employment practice for an employer to fail or refuse to hire or to discharge any individual, or otherwise to discriminate against any individual . . . because of such individual's . . . sex[.]”). And when students are not permitted to use school facilities, such as restrooms, consistent with their gender identity, they are facing discrimination because of their sex. See Bostock, 590 U.S. at 660 (“[I]t is impossible to discriminate against a person for being . . . transgender without discriminating against that individual based on sex.”).

The district court wrongly concluded that Bostock should not be extended to Title IX, stating that the Rule would “render meaningless” exemptions allowing some sex separation. ROA.2367. But the Rule does not require schools to do away with sex-separated spaces. It simply ensures students can use the sex-separated restroom or locker room that aligns with their gender identity.

II. Policies That Allow Transgender Students to Use Facilities that Align with Their Gender Identity Do Not Harm Cisgender Girls or Women, But Do Protect Transgender Girls and Women From Harm.

The district court’s irreparable-harm analysis does not conclude that allowing students who are transgender to use facilities that align with their gender identity would harm cisgender women and girls. Moreover, the decision disregards the serious harm the Rule was meant to mitigate: the harm transgender students experience when forced to use restrooms and locker rooms inconsistent with their gender identity. There is abundant data, and lived experience, confirming that policies permitting transgender individuals to use school facilities aligning with their gender identity do not harm other students. But barring transgender students from gender-identity-aligned facilities has potentially catastrophic consequences for their physical safety and mental health.

A. Research confirms that transgender-inclusive locker and restroom policies do not harm other students.

Research has confirmed that “fears of increased safety and privacy violations” because of nondiscrimination laws protecting transgender people’s access to restrooms and locker rooms “are not empirically grounded.”⁵ Indeed, it is “exceedingly rare” that criminal incidents take place in public restrooms, locker rooms, and changing rooms.⁶ Specifically, results from a 2018 study revealed “the passage of such nondiscrimination laws is not related to the number or frequency of criminal incidents in such public spaces.”⁷

Law enforcement officials in cities and states with nondiscrimination policies that protect transgender individuals agree. Officials in two jurisdictions with nondiscrimination policies “could not identify a single case in which a transgender person ha[d] been charged with assaulting or harassing women in a public bathroom.”⁸ A report from Human Rights Watch also found no evidence that transgender students’ use of restroom or locker room facilities “correspond[ing] to their gender identity puts other ⁵ Amira Hasenbush et al., Gender Identity Nondiscrimination Laws in Public Accommodations: a Review of Evidence Regarding Safety and Privacy in Public Restrooms, Locker Rooms, and Changing Rooms, 16 Sexuality Rsch. and Soc. Pol’y 70, 81 (July 23, 2018), https://escholarship.org/content/qt4rs4n6h0/qt4rs4n6h0_noSplash_8740e92d7f24b6c89dbd4bd4d27fbbcb.pdf; see also Julie Moreau, No link between trans-inclusive policies and bathroom safety, study finds, NBC News (Sept. 19, 2018), <https://www.nbcnews.com/feature/nbc-out/no-link-between-trans-inclusive-policies-bathroom-safety-study-finds-n911106>.

⁶ Hasenbush et al., supra note 6, at 79.

⁷ Id. at 81.

⁸ Lou Chibbaro Jr., Predictions of trans bathroom harassment unfounded, Washington Blade (March 31, 2016), <https://www.washingtonblade.com/2016/03/31/predictions-of-trans-bathroom-harassment-unfounded/>.

students at risk.”⁹ As the American Medical Association put it in one report, “no evidence exists” to support claims that those engaging in sexual violence “will take advantage of public accommodation laws” to target women and children.¹⁰

Title IX and its corresponding regulations already require schools to maintain safe educational environments and respond promptly and effectively to sex harassment, including sexual assault. The Rule clarifies that this requirement includes undertaking prompt investigations of reports of sex harassment, taking other steps to end harassment, preventing its recurrence, and remedying its effects. 34 C.F.R. § 106.44(f)(1). Amici include advocates and service providers for all survivors of sexual violence, including student survivors, and their support is based on their certainty that the Rule will reduce risk of sexual assault or harassment in schools. Indeed, experts who are advocates for survivors of sexual assault, like amici, routinely support transgender-inclusive locker and restroom policies precisely because there is no evidence

⁹ Ryan Thoreson, Shut Out: Restrictions on Bathroom and Locker Room Access for Transgender Youth in US Schools, Hum. Rts. Watch (Sept. 14, 2016), www.hrw.org/report/2016/09/15/shut-out/restrictions-bathroom-and-locker-room-access-transgender-youth-us.

¹⁰ Am. Med. Ass’n & GLMA, Transgender individuals’ access to public facilities (2018), <https://www.ama-assn.org/system/files/2019-03/transgender-public-facilities-issue-brief.pdf>.

supporting Appellees' claims that such policies harm others.¹¹

Appellees' asserted concerns also consistently fail to consider available mitigating measures or ones already in place. For example, restroom stalls enable all students to use facilities discreetly to protect their privacy. A.C., 75 F.4th at 773 (observing that a student's presence behind the door of a restroom stall does not threaten student privacy). Schools can also install other privacy strips and screens. See, e.g., Grimm, 972 F.3d at 614. And cisgender students may use available single-occupancy facilities, as the Rule states.¹² See, e.g., Parents for Priv., 949 F.3d at 1225 (holding alleged privacy violation was mitigated by "alternative options and privacy protections" for those who did not want to share a facility with a transgender student, even if alternatives "appear[ed] inferior or less convenient").

¹¹ Nat'l Task Force to End Sexual and Domestic Violence Against Women, National Consensus Statement of Anti-Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Organizations in Support of Full and Equal Access for the Transgender Community (updated Apr. 29, 2016), <https://endsexualviolence.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/09/STATEMENT-OF-ANTI-SEXUAL-ASSAULT-AND-DOMESTIC-VIOLENCE-ORGANIZATIONS-IN-SUPPORT-OF-EQUAL-ACCESS-FOR-THE-TRANSGENDER-COMMUNITY.pdf>.

¹² The Rule ensures the privacy of all students, whether cisgender, transgender, or nonbinary, by allowing students to choose whether to use sex-separated restrooms that match their gender identity or to use a single-user restroom if they prefer. 89 Fed. Reg. at 33820. No student is forced to use either a sex-separated restroom that does not match their gender identity or a single-user restroom, which ensures that every student can pick the facility where they feel safest. Id. ("[N]othing in Title IX or the final regulations prevents a recipient from offering single occupancy facilities, among other accommodations, to any students who seek additional privacy for any reason.").

In promulgating the Rule, the Department engaged in a thorough consideration of the factual record—including Appellees’ concerns—and correctly concluded that the Rule would not infringe on the cisgender students’ privacy and safety rights. Br. for Appellants 16-17, ECF No. 81; 89 Fed. Reg. at 33820. The district court erred in concluding otherwise. The opinion points to no supporting evidence, ROA.2382, because it cannot. As set forth above, the social science data confirms that transgender-inclusive policies create no actual harms to cisgender students.

B. Excluding transgender students from school facilities that align with their gender identity harms them.

Transgender students, on the other hand, suffer significant harms when barred from using facilities that align with their gender identity, a fact the district court ignored. These harms can have long-lasting impacts on students’ health and educational outcomes. Because of transgender students’ heightened risk of experiencing sex-based discrimination, the Department’s changes to the Rule are critical for three reasons.

First, a majority of transgender students report having avoided school facilities because of safety concerns. One survey of K-12 students shows 82.1% of transgender students avoid using the restroom and 69.1% of transgender students avoid using the locker room because they felt unsafe or uncomfortable.¹³ Research also shows that when transgender students are excluded from the restrooms matching their gender identity, they avoid using the restroom altogether while at school, leading to serious health risks, including kidney damage and urinary tract infections.¹⁴ Some transgender students also avoid drinking or eating throughout the school day to avoid restroom use.¹⁵

Second, students who are not cisgender are more susceptible to violence in these settings and “at risk of physical, verbal, or sexual assault from other students or adults.”¹⁶ For example, cisgender boys broke seventeen-year-old nonbinary student Cobalt Sovereign’s jaw after Cobalt

¹³ Joseph G. Kosciw et al., GLSEN, The 2019 National School Climate Survey: The Experiences of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer Youth in Our Nation’s Schools, 97 (2020), https://www.glsen.org/sites/default/files/2020-10/NSCS-2019-Full-Report_0.pdf.

¹⁴ Sandy E. James et al., Nat’l Ctr. for Transgender Equal., The Report of the 2015 U.S. Transgender Survey 224-30 (Dec. 2016) (“2015 Survey”), <https://transequality.org/sites/default/files/docs/usts/USTS-Full-Report-Dec17.pdf> (citing Jody L. Herman, Gendered Restrooms and Minority Stress: The Public Regulation of Gender and Its Impact on Transgender People’s Lives, 19 J. Pub. Mgmt. & Soc. Pol’y 65, 75 (2013)). See also Grimm, 972 F.3d at 593 (transgender student plaintiff developed urinary tract infections due to bathroom avoidance).

¹⁵ See, e.g., Doe, 897 F.3d at 523 (forcing transgender students to use restrooms that do not match their gender identity causes students to “avoid going to the bathroom by fasting, dehydrating, or otherwise forcing themselves not to use the restroom throughout the day”); Whitaker, 858 F.3d at 1041 (transgender student denied restroom access “restricted his water intake to ensure that he did not have to utilize the restroom at school”); Carcano v. McCrory, 203 F. Supp. 3d 615, 650 (M.D.N.C. 2016) (transgender student plaintiffs “limit their fluid intake and resist the urge to use a bathroom whenever possible”); Kosciw, supra note 14, at 229 (nearly 32% of transgender adult responders avoided eating or drinking to avoid using the restroom).

¹⁶ Thoreson, supra note 10.

used the restroom that aligned with their sex assigned at birth.¹⁷ The assault occurred after a cisgender boy violated Cobalt’s privacy and peered over Cobalt’s stall while they were using the facility.¹⁸

Transgender students who face locker or restroom restrictions are significantly more likely to experience sexual assault than transgender students whose facility use is not restricted.¹⁹ One study showed that 25.9% of transgender and nonbinary U.S. adolescents experience sexual assault—substantially higher than rates of 15% for cisgender high school girls and 4% for cisgender boys.²⁰ However, transgender and nonbinary youth subjected to locker or restroom restrictions experienced an even higher prevalence of sexual assault: 36%.²¹ When transgender and nonbinary youth are not met with restrictions, the prevalence drops—

¹⁷ Kiara Alfonseca, Transgender student alleges assault after using bathroom, family calls for charges, ABC News (June 7, 2024), <https://abcnews.go.com/US/transgender-student-assaulted-after-bathroom-family-calls-charges/story?id=110927216>; see also Amber Jayanth, Transgender Butler County man says group beat him up over restroom use, Fox19 (July 8, 2022), <https://www.fox19.com/2022/07/08/transgender-butler-county-man-says-group-beat-him-up-using-wrong-restroom> (noting a group of cisgender men battered Noah Ruiz after a campground owner forced him to use the women’s restroom).

¹⁸ Id.

¹⁹ Gabriel R. Murchison et al., School Restroom/Locker Room Restrictions and Sexual Assault Risk Among Transgender Youth, Pediatrics (2019), <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC8849575/>.

²⁰ Id. at 7.

²¹ Id. at 6.

albeit slightly—to 24.3%.²²

Third, policies precluding transgender students from using gender-identity-aligned restrooms and locker rooms also cause psychological harm. “When transgender students face discrimination in schools, the risk to their wellbeing cannot be overstated—indeed, it can be life threatening.” Doe, 897 F.3d at 529. The pervasive discrimination that too many transgender students experience at school often results in adverse mental health outcomes. LGBTQI+ students who encounter hostility and discrimination in K-12 educational settings—such as verbal harassment, physical attacks, or sexual assault—report higher levels of depression and lower levels of self-esteem than students who have not experienced victimization.²³ More severe experiences of victimization are tied to higher levels of depression and lower self-esteem.²⁴ The consequences of discrimination can be catastrophic: transgender students who encounter violence or verbal harassment have a “higher prevalence of lifetime and past-year suicide thoughts and attempts” than respondents who did not have such experiences.²⁵

²² Id. at 18.

²³ Kosciw, supra note 14, at 52-54.

²⁴ Id.

²⁵ Jody L. Herman et al., The Williams Inst., UCLA Sch. of L., Suicide Thoughts and

Hostility or discrimination in schools—whether verbal or physical—can negatively impact the attendance, academic achievement, and educational aspirations of transgender students. When students experience harassment or hostility at school, they may be less likely to attend to avoid hurtful experiences.²⁶ In one national survey of LGBTQ students, they “were nearly three times as likely to have missed school in the past month” if the student had experienced a “higher level[] of victimization” because of their sexual orientation or gender identity.²⁷ LGBTQ students experiencing victimization also report lower GPAs and lower aspirations for secondary education than those not experiencing victimization.²⁸

Notably, anti-transgender locker and restroom policies also harm cisgender girls who do not conform to rigid standards of femininity, as such policies invoke enforcement of sex-based stereotypes to determine who is a “real” woman or girl. There are numerous examples of gender-nonconforming women being harassed or ejected from women’s restrooms, Attempts Among Transgender Adults: Findings from the 2015 U.S. Transgender Survey 22 (Sept. 2019), <https://williamsinstitute.law.ucla.edu/wpcontent/uploads/Suicidality-Transgender-Sep-2019.pdf>.

²⁶ Kosciw, supra note 14, at 48.

²⁷ Id.

²⁸ Id.

an experience that is both humiliating and harmful.²⁹ For example, one twenty-four-year-old cisgender woman who had cut her hair very short reported being harassed in a women’s restroom.³⁰ While in a stall, a stranger asserted that she was transgender and said she “better not come out of there.”³¹ The district court’s injunction will likewise make some cisgender women and girls susceptible to this sort of gender policing in public spaces and to serious emotional or physical harm in school facilities.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, this Court should reverse the decision below.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Kaitlyn Golden

Kaitlyn Golden

Madeline Gitomer

Victoria S. Nugent

²⁹ See, e.g., Melanie Springer Mock, I’m a Woman Who Got Kicked Out of Women’s Bathrooms, Christianity Today Int’l (June 7, 2016), <https://www.christianitytoday.com/women/2016/june-web-only/im-woman-who-got-kicked-out-of-womens-bathrooms.html>; Matt DeRienzo, Woman mistaken for transgender harassed in Walmart bathroom, News Times (May 16, 2016); <https://www.newstimes.com/local/article/Woman-mistaken-for-transgender-harassed-in-7471666.php>.

³⁰ Christopher Wiggins, Cis Woman Mistaken as Transgender Records Being Berated in Bathroom, The Advocate (updated May 26, 2023), <https://www.advocate.com/news/2022/11/01/cis-woman-mistaken-transgender-records-being-berated-bathroom>.

³¹ Id.

DEMOCRACY FORWARD FOUNDATION
P.O. Box 34553
Washington, DC 20043

Anya Marino
Shiwali Patel
Emily Martin
Elizabeth E. Theran
NATIONAL WOMEN'S LAW CENTER
1350 I Street NW, Suite 700
Washington, DC 20005

Counsel for Amici Curiae

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

I certify that this filing complies with the type-volume limitation of Fed. R. App. P. 32(a)(7)(B) because, excluding the parts exempted by Fed. R. App. P. 32(f), it contains 6,038 words.

This filing also complies with the typeface requirements of Fed. R. App. P. 32(a)(5) and Fifth Circuit Rule 32.1 and the type-style requirements of Fed. R. App. P. 32(a)(6) because it has been prepared in a proportionally spaced typeface using Microsoft Word 365 in 14-point Century Schoolbook font, with 12-point font for footnotes.

/s/ Kaitlyn Golden

Date: September 4, 2024

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I hereby certify that on September 4, 2024, a true and accurate copy of the foregoing proposed brief was electronically filed with the Court using the CM/ECF system. Service on counsel for all parties will be accomplished through the Court's electronic filing system.

/s/ Kaitlyn Golden

Date: September 4, 2024